

French Orthoptic practice: my role in providing multi-professional low vision care
Armelle Melusson

The low vision assessment is not a search for performance but a “state of the art” of daily and current conditions in order to help the patient. It begins with a precise interrogation on the patient’s daily life, then a series of functional tests to lead to advice, explanations on the impact of the disease, demonstrations and if necessary, a rehabilitative management.